

Dear All

Kindly be advised that we need an authenticated Divorce order not certified Divorce order, RSA has missions abroad which should verify and put authenticity stamp on each and every document(s) they receive within the country of origin, before transmitting them(documents) to South Africa for capturing, hence we request that the same should happen with this case. .In principle the onus of proving that a foreign order is entitled to recognition rests upon the party seeking to rely on it. He or She must establish that the foreign order meets jurisdictional requirements for competence set out in section 13 of the Divorce Act. If you still need more clarity please call me on 012 810 8311

I trust that you will find the above in order.

Regards
